

BEING THERE FOR THEM: A virtual panel for parents and allies of neurodiverse high school students and young adults

December 10th from 7:30 - 8:30 PM

This past year has us reaching deep into our toolkit. Parents and providers have had to explore new ways to help guide neurodiverse learners while maintaining their own self-care and balance. The panelists will offer perspectives, resources, and strategies to help families navigate this complex time.

From resources to communication strategies, the panelists are eager to share their insights from decades of experience and their reflections from these last months. We hope you will join us for this free virtual panel as we all draw strength from this incredible community.

Panelists:

Mike Haykin, Seattle Academy of Arts and Science

Seth Miller, Seattle Public Schools, Speech and Language Pathologist

Christy Bateman, Enigma ASD Services, Thrive Seattle Living

Reza Khastou, The Polytech

Moderator: Ben Wahl, Ryther's Aspiring Youth Program

Washington State educators, clock hours are available for attendance, courtesy of our friends at The Polytech. There is a $10 admin fee. Please indicate if you would like clock hours on the RSVP form.
